

SoCal Confidential

BOOTH MOORE

Veuve Clicquot scared up a costume party for several hundred revelers Sunday at the gorgeous Canfield-Moreno private estate in Silver Lake. The champagne vintner has a Halloween bash in a different American city each year. It was L.A.'s turn this year. The setting, with its 360-degree city-light views, was dreamy—torch songs by local chanteuse Morgan (pronounced Morg-ann), oyster and sushi bars, four acres on which to frolic, and plenty of bubbly, of course. Spotted: Che Guevara, Dr. Evil, Fidel Castro, Mona Lisa, Robert Downey Jr., Payne Stewart, bless his soul, and many a Madame Clicquot (the trailblazing French aristocrat who took over her husband's champagne house after he died in 1805).

